Dwellings owned by natural persons

Definition:

Dwellings, the ownership title to which belongs to a natural person (one or more, e.g. spouses), while this person: - can be the owner of the whole real estate in which the dwelling is situated; for example an individual single family house, - can have a share in a shared real estate, as the right related to the separate ownership title to a dwelling, e.g. located in a building included in a condominium.

The ownership right to the entire real estate or only the dwelling with the assigned part of real estate (so-called share in a shared real estate) should be revealed in the land and mortgage register, and in case of lack of such, in other document certifying the ownership title.
