

Terms used in official statistics

Density of population

Density of population is a measure of the condensation of the population on the given territory - expressed most often in persons on 1 square kilometer (also in persons on 1 hectares - when the population is very large, e.g. in agglomerations).

In the calculation, the basis of the reference is the area in hectares, then converted as the number of people per square kilometer.

Population size

Sekretariat-BD@stat.gov.pl

Density of population